A new anti-Tito Communist clandestine broadcasting station, apparently of considerable power, was first intercepted on 5 August 1949 at 21:00 GMT on exactly the same frequency as Radio Belgrade's short-wave transmitter, 6100 kilocycles. A few seconds before Radio Belgrade began the relay of its final newscast of the evening, a woman was heard to announce in Serb/Croat, "This is the Radio Station of the Yugoslav Revolutionary Emigrants." She went on to say that the broadcast would include extracts from an article entitled, "The Tito Clique is Stabbing the Democratic Greek Army in the Back," an article attacking the Atlantic Pact, and news from the People's Republics and Yugoslav emigrants in Rumania. The fifteen minute broadcast, which almost completely blotted out Radio Belgrade, closed with the announcement that the next broadcast would be tomorrow at the same time, followed by the slogan, "Forward-Under the Banner of Internationalism-For Socialist Yugoslavia!" (a phrase coined from the titles of Yugoslav Cominform papers published in Sofia, Bucharest and Moscow respectively).

The station was heard on its announced schedule on 6 and 7 August, but the frequency was adjusted to 6110 kes, making it possible to monitor Radio Belgrade without interference.
